

SMALL COHORT CLASS MENU

Practical technology and AI classes for real people.

Bryan Teaches AI offers small, hands-on classes for adults, teams, and community groups. Cohorts are intentionally limited so participants can ask questions, practice, and leave with something useful.

6-10 per cohort

Private groups available

Founding cohort interest list

Central Indiana + virtual

Workplace Computer Confidence	Adults who need files, email, meetings, forms, and safety basics for work.	Quick guide, practice plan, realistic workplace simulation.
Practical AI for Work	Professionals and small teams ready to use AI for real tasks.	Reusable request method, review checklist, one workflow card.
AI Safety and Smarter Use	Community groups, families, seniors, and curious beginners.	Privacy habits, scam awareness, safer prompts, verification checklist.
Responsible AI Readiness	Owners, leaders, HR, operations, nonprofits, and associations.	Information-boundary map, human-review checklist, 30-day action plan.
Private Tech and AI Coaching	Individuals, founders, and professionals with specific questions.	Personal next steps, guided practice, cleaner workflow.

Why small cohorts work

- Enough people for shared energy and questions.
- Small enough for Bryan to notice who is stuck.
- Hands-on practice instead of a lecture-only session.
- Clear next step for anyone who needs more help.

Simple booking language

Now forming founding-cohort interest lists for small public classes. Private classes can be scheduled for organizations, coworking spaces, community groups, and families.

Join the interest list or request a private class

bryan@crouchdevelopment.com |
bryanteachesai.com